

25 Topics To Discuss with Your Health Care Agent

You should discuss your beliefs and wishes with your health care agent. When instructing your health care agent about your wishes in the event you become incapacitated and your agent needs to make health care decisions, you should consider the following questions.

There are no right or wrong or “preferable” answers to these questions. Each person should answer these questions based on his or her own beliefs and convey those beliefs and wishes to his or her health care agent. Any other wishes or desires that you feel your health care agent should know should also be given to them so that your agent can carry out his or her responsibilities as you would wish.

Changes

If, over time, your beliefs or attitudes in any area change, you should inform your health care agent. It is also wise to inform your health care agent of the status of your health when there are changes such as new diagnoses.

In the event you are informed of a terminal illness, this, as well as the ramifications of illness, should be discussed with him or her. How well your health care agent performs depends on how well you have prepared them.
